

From: Tim
Sent: Tuesday, 18 March 2008 10:28 PM
To: National Broadband Network Taskforce
Subject: submission for broadband network

Hi

My suggestion would be to allow Telstra to build a percentage of the network in exchange for giving up ownership rights to the remainder of the network and full removal of government ownership. With the other winning bidder/consortium(G9?) taking ownership of the other half of the network. With ACCC governed regulation for both over pricing, plus a universal service obligation for both. Thus creating a regulated duopoly, which should make market pressures a bit more balance maybe?

That's my cents

Tim Foley